WILL DEMAND "DRY" PLANKS

W. C. T. U. TO WORK ALSO FOR DRY CANDIDATES.

SEVERAL MENTIONED

Hoover and Lowden Approved at Institute Here, Charles M. Hay for Senator.

The W. C. T. U., is asking both the major political parties to insert dry planks in their platforms and to nominate dry candidates to stand on them, it was brought out at the Nodaway County Institute of the W. C. T. U., held at the First Methodist Church here yesterday.

Candidates approved by the W. C. T. U., and who were mentioned yesterday as being "dry," were Herbert Hoover and Frank O. Lowden, Republican candidates for President, and Charles M. Hay, Democratic candidate for United States Senator from Missouri.

Enthusiastic endorsement was given Senator Borah of Idaho.

Governor Al Smith of New York and Senator James A. Reed, Missouri, were listed as "wet."

"The W. C. T. U., has no part in the controversy in regard to religion," it was declared by Mrs. Minnie Radcliff of Kirkwood, state organizer of the W. C. T. U., and director of work for prison welfare and juvenile courts. "But we are vitally interested concerning the man who is nominated and elected as the chief magistrate of the United States. He must be a dry man and be ready to fulfill his obligation in the execution of the eighteenth amendment, as well as other laws."

Many to Vote First Time.

Mrs. Radcliff stated that 2,165,000 young men and women come of voting age this year and that 10,000,000 will cast their first vote for president this year.

"The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment recently stated," she said, "that 65,000 persons had died as the result of alcoholic drink since prohibition. The W. C. T. U., calls attention to the fact that in pre-prohibition days the statement was that a hundred thousand persons died annually from drink. The insurance companies reported on their investigation 68,879 per year. This, it may be seen is 3,879 per year more than the A. A. P. A., now claims have died in the entire prohibition period. More than half a million would have died from drink had it not been for prohibition. Who wants prohibition repealed?"

Mrs. E. K. Lambert, county president, presided at the meeting. The session yesterday morning was opened with a song and a prayer was given by Mrs. R. L. McDougal. Short talks featured the morning session.

In the afternoon Mrs. Lambert led the devotional service. Mrs. C. Carr of Arkoe led in prayer.

The "White Ribbon Rally Song," was sung by Mrs. T. M. Jones, Arkoe, and Mrs. C. H. Geyer, Skidmore.

"Symposium"— Laying Foundations Through the L. T. L." was discussed by Mrs. T. M. Jones. Mrs. Geyer discussed W. C. T. U. literature. The speaker recalled the attendance of Frances E. Willard at the National Sunday School Association held in Detroit, where she requested that one Sunday in each quarter be given to temperance teaching. The request was granted.

Talks on School Training.

Mrs. H. W. Montgomery of Skidmore talked on essay contest work in public schools. She urged that the schools exert their utmost influence in training the youth of today that they may be intelligently informed as to the actual dangers in alcohol and the use of tobacco.

Mrs. Charles Gaugh, Maryville, gave a paper on "Dry Candidates and Dry Planks."

Consecration services of Dale Miller, infant of Arkoe, to the temperance cause were held. He was decorated with a white ribbon by Mrs. Radcliff.

A committee of the W. C. T. U. will appear before the Republican and Democratic conventions asking for dry planks and dry candidates.

"It will make a great difference whether a dry or wet president is elected, for more than 40,000 government posts are filled by presidential appointment and each president fills these jobs from the ranks of his own supporters." Mrs. Radcliff pointed out.

Had Been a Resident of Nodaway County for 59 Years—Was a Native of Ohio.

Frank Knabb, 71 years old, died suddenly at 5 o'clock this morning at his home, 604 North Fillmore street. He had been in failing health for some time, but death came unexpectedly, Mr. Knabb was ill only a half hour.

He was a native of Ohio, but had been a resident of Nodaway county for 59 years. He lived near Wilcox and near Clearmont and from the latter place moved to Maryville.

Survivors are the wife, Mrs. Zetta Knabb and two brothers, J. J. Knabb, Maryville and Will Knabb, Monta Vista, Colo.; and two sisters, Mrs. Louella Taylor, Hopkins, and Mrs. Katie Walker, Stronghurst, Ill. There are no children.

Mr. Knabb was a member of the Christian church. Funeral arrangements will not be made until relatives from a distance have been heard from.

Petitions Now Being Circulated.—Big Farm Meet in August.—Bread and Beautification.

The first of a series of monthly meetings of the Chamber of Commerce was held in the basement of the First M. E. Church last night to discuss some of the proposed activities of the organization for the coming year. The meeting was attended by forty persons.

The tables were arranged to form a square and speakers were required to keep their seats when talking. The meeting was presided over by Clun M. Price, president of the organization, who asked for suggestions along many lines for the betterment of Maryville and Nodaway county.

Many matters were discussed, including publicity; some trade promotion stunts; a fall entertainment; a city beautification program; securing of more members for the Chamber of Commerce; a milk plant for Maryville; a municipal band; buying of Maryville bread; and some industrial offers if stock could be sold.

Band Petitions Circulated.

The municipal band discussion followed the circulation of petitions yesterday requesting the city council to call a special election to vote on a tax levy of one mill for supporting a band. The petitions had fifty-six names signed last night. Ninety-six signers are required and it is expected to have more than that number today.

Since the levy of one mill will not increase the general revenue fund levy above five mills, such a proposition will require only a majority vote. The matter probably will be voted upon within the next few weeks so that band concerts can be held this summer. Heretofore the merchants have supported the band here.

Ernest Wray, president of the Nodaway County Farm Bureau, has secured a meeting of a Mid-West school under the Farm Bureau Federation to be held in Maryville some time the fore part of August. This meeting will be attended by some 300 farmers from Miss Helen Andrews and Feminine Companion Have Gruesome Experience at Des Moines.

Miss Helen Andrews, Hopkins girl who is taking nurse's training at Des Moines, Ia., figured in an exciting incident one day last week when she and a girl friend pulled a man out of the Des Moines River while boat riding.

The man whom they pulled ashore was dead and had been missed for a long time. The river had been dragged for his body previously.

Miss Andrews and her companion were featured last week in the Des Moines Register, which carried the pictures of both.

Miss Andrews is a daughter of Joseph Andrews of Hopkins.

33 WILL TAKE PART

Place of Presentation Not Decided.—Class Sermon to Be Sunday Night.

"The Three Graces" is the title of the play which will be presented by the spring graduating class of the Maryville high school Thursday, May 17. It is a college comedy in three-acts and is from the play by Kenyon Nicholson and Dana Reed.

It has not been decided as yet whether the play will be given in the auditorium of the State Teachers College or at the high school building.

The director of the play is the class sponsor, Miss Mabel Messick.

Twenty-three members of the class have been chosen to take part. Twelve are the principals of the cast, while carry minor roles.

The cast of characters follows:
Mr. Sims, Harry Wilson.
Harriet Holmes, Betty Woodhull.
Nancy Marshall, Marzella Clary.
Sarah Chadsey, Elizabeth Hull.
Bob Nordyke, Erman Barrett.
Eloise Smythe, Martha Wyman.
Pinkie Davis, Wilbur Frankum.
Miss Price, Eleanor Nicholas.
Horace Babson, Maurice Woodburn.
Edna Carr, Mary Alice Jones.
Coach Tanner, Edwin Manley.
Dean Coulter, Irvin Jones.

The baccalaureate services will be held Sunday night at the First M. E. Church, at which time all the Protestant churches will join in a union meeting. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Guy L. Prather, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

The play is the story of Nancy Marshall, a junior at Hargate College, who is the recipient of a house, left by her grandfather, which she is unable to rent because of a ghost story. Being hard up, she, with the aid of two college chums, starts a tearoom known as The Three Graces.

Business booms until Sarah bakes a waffle for Bob Nordyke, the star quarterback, on the day before the big game. Eloise Smythe, who is jealous of Nancy, tells the coach that Bob has broken training by eating the waffle. The coach puts Bob off the team and has the tearoom closed. How the Three Disgraces, as they are now called, get out of their dilemma is played in an ingenious manner.

Special Rail Rates to Methodist Meet

Large Number of Maryville Persons Expected to Attend General Conference at Kansas City.

With a special railroad rate of about a cent a mile for the coming week-end, it is probable a large number of Maryville persons will plan to attend the General Conference of Methodist churches, now in session at Kansas City. One of the high points of the conference is to be the World Men's Council, meeting Saturday and Sunday.

Among a long list of distinguished speakers will be Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago; Ralph Connor, preacher and author; Edward A. Steiner, lecturer and writer; Bishop Frederick B. Fisher and E. Stanley Jones of India; Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin; and Charles A. Tindley of Philadelphia, one of the best known negro preachers in the world.

A series of similar meetings has been arranged for women.

A small registration fee is charged each person attending the council.

Registartion cards and other information can be obtained by seeing the Rev. W. S. Woodhull, pastor of the First M. E. Church. Registration can be made at the Convention Hall on arrival but it would be better to register before going and get the official badge and program, Mr. Woodhull said.

The hours of the addresses will be 2 o'clock and 7:30 o'clock on Saturday, and sessions at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night.

It is requested that all who intend to go phone their names to the office of the church here or to the parsonage.

Next week there will be a series of conferences each afternoon on the various phases of religious education. This discusion will be led by great authorities on this general subject and will be of the utmost value to all Sunday school teachers and officers, Mr. Woodhull said.

Postal Clerk, Shot in Hold-up, Finishes Job

Kansas City, May 8.—Hunter Sherman of Kansas City was found dead in a motor car today near Randolph, Mo., with a bullet wound in his head, apparently inflicted by himself.

Two notes were found in Sherman's clothes. One was addressed to the police and bore the single word "suicide."

The other was addressed to Sherman's mother and father. It said: "A letter for you in the packet of papers on my dresser. See that the others get to the proper hands. Am awfully sorry about this but thought it best." It was signed, "your son."

Sherman, formally a postal clerk, was shot in a holdup by bandits near Cheyenne, Wyo., January 23, and had been unable to work since. He was 32 years old.

PARNELL MAN IS A SUICIDE

B. C. SCOVEL DRINKS STRYCHNINE THIS MORNING.

NO NOTES ARE FOUND

Business Troubles Are Thought to Have Caused Former Gaynor Farmer to End His Life.

B. C. Scovel, about 53 years old, proprietor of the Scovel restaurant at Parnell, took his life today by drinking strychnine, according to reports from that town.

Shortly before noon he was heard groaning in the implement shed on the George Felton property on the west edge of Parnell by W. I. Burns, who lives across the street. Scovel died about noon. He had a Bible at his side when he was found.

Business troubles were thought to have caused the suicide. Mr. Scovel had operated the restaurant for about three months. Formerly he had lived on a farm a short distance east of Gaynor, which it is said he lost.

No notes that he might have written had been found at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. Frank Wallis, coroner, was summoned early this afternoon to hold an inquest.

Mr. Scovel was thought to have been one of the tallest men in Nodaway county, standing over 6 feet 6 inches.

He is survived by his widow, two step sons, Earl Smith and Kenneth Stewart of Parnell, and his father, a brother and a sister who live in California. Scovel had been married before, but his first wife died several years ago.

Herrick Dedicates Monument to Fliers

Ambassador Makes Speech at Le Bourget Field, France, in Honor of Lindbergh, Nungesser and Coli.

Paris, May 8.—United States Ambassador Herrick today made the principal speech at the dedication of a monument at Le Bourget Field to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, Charles Nungesser, and Francois Coli.

It was at Le Bourget that Lindbergh landed after his airplane flight from New York, and it was from Le Bourget that Nungesser and Coli, French war aces, set out on a flight to New York only to disappear at sea.

Nungessor's mother and Coli's widow were present at the dedication. Both wept as the French and American flags covering the monument were drawn away and a military band played the French and American national anthems.

The monument is inscribed: "In honor of those who tried and of him who succeeded."

A squadron of army airplanes circled the flying field during the ceremony. Friends of Nungesser and Coli attended a special mass in the church on the cliff near Etretat, on the English channel, where the aviators last were seen. A cornerstone monument was laid there.

Norbeck Says Hoover Is Farm Relief Foe

Washington, May 8.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover was charged with opposing sound farm relief legislation in a speech in the Senate today by Senator Norbeck, Republican, South Dakota. Norbeck said Hoover failed to mention the McNary-Haugen bill in a telegram circulated in Indiana and that the telegram was sent two days after the bill passed the House by a majority of nearly 100.

JAPAN DENIES INTERVENTION

TROOPS SENT TO PROTECT FOREIGNERS, U. S. IS TOLD.

STRONG DEMAND MADE

Terms to Chinese Include Complete Evacuation of Tsinan and Withdrawal From Railroad.

Washington, May 8.—Complete evacuation of Tsinan by Chinese Nationalist troops and their withdrawal from the 250-mile route of the Tsinan-Tsingtao railway was demanded in a Japanese ultimatum handed General Chiang Kai-Shek, Nationalist commander, according to advices received here today from Peking.

This information, attributed to Japanese forces, said the ultimatum was delivered to Chiang in Tsinan yesterday. The dispatches did not mention what time limit had been set on the order.

The ultimatum, among other things, demanded the disarming of certain "guilty" Chinese units, the withdrawal of all Chinese troops from a zone 20 li (about six miles) on either side of the Tsinan-Tsingtao railway and around the settlement of Tsinan, and the disarming of all other troops who may remain within the limits of this zone.

For "Protection" Only.

The dispatches also said that reports had been received in Peking of renewed fighting between Chinese and Japanese troops.

Japanese Ambassador Matsudira today personally assured Secretary of State Kellogg that the movement of Japanese troops into Shantung was only for the purpose of protecting the lives and property of foreigners and had no other meaning.

He was said also to have repeated the promise made in Tokio on April 18 that the military force would be withdrawn as soon as the emergency passed. During his conference, he discussed the looting of foreign property in Tsinan and handed the Secretary a list of the Japanese dead and wounded in the battle.

Inquiry Not Necessary.

The ambassador's assurances that the military move is simply a protective measure probably will make unnecessary a proposed American inquiry as to the purpose of the movement, it was said later. It had been planned originally, officials said, to have Ambassador MacVeagh in Tokio make the inquiry.

Under the 1922 Washington nine-power treaty, which became effective in 1924, the Japanese and other foreign governments interested in China agreed never to intervene in China except when necessary to protect lives and property of their nationals. It was suggested that if Japan is now interested only in protecting its 12,000 nationals in Shantung the question of intervention would not be involved.

Dispatches from China saying Japan seized the Tsingtao-Tsinan railway were interpreted in official quarters here as perhaps a step beyond mere protection.

The communication which Washington had been expected to send was not to be in the nature of a protest or warning. It was said the United States does not wish to set itself up as an interpreter of the nine-power pact. The American note would nevertheless have indicated clearly, it was asserted, that the United States looks with concern upon the military movement in Shantung.

Still Lacks Information.

The State Department still lacks unbiased information concerning the Tsinan battle and its causes. While some officials felt that undisciplined Chinese troops may have precipitated the fighting, others thought it "peculiar" that the Japanese troops should first have sought to destroy the Chinese wireless station in Tsinan, thus cutting off Chinese communication. These latter interpreted the inclusion of technical experts and special-duty troops with the Japanese expeditionary forces intended to occupy Shantung for indeterminate period.

Lindy Discusses Plan With Ford Officials

Detroit, Mich., May 8.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was in Detroit today to discuss with Edsel Ford and officials of the Ford Motor Company the tentative plans for his flight to Europe, by way of the Northland.

Lindbergh and his instrutor in navigation, Lieut. Commander P. V. M. Weems, assigned to him by the War Department, arrived last night from Curtiss Field, N. Y., in Lindy's new Ryan monoplane.

Under present plans for the European flight, Lindbergh will use a giant tri-motored Ford plane. He will be accompanied by Major Thomas G. Lanphier of Selfridge Field.

Henry Russell of Hopkins was a Maryville visitor today.

Henry Ford Predicts Continued Prosperity

No Factor in Sight to Disturb Business, He Says.—Ford Production to Increase.

New York, May 8.—Continued prosperity in the United States was predicted by Henry Ford when he returned today on the Majestic from his trip abroad.

"I am confident that Current prosperity in the United States will continue," Ford said. "The business outlook is good and there is no factor in sight to disturb its future."

With Mrs. Ford, the automobile man traveled on the liner as "Mr. and Mrs. Jack Robinson," but the incognito was merely a pleasant subterfuge that had no effect in concealing his identity from the passengers.

Regarding production of the Ford Motor Co., Ford said about 1,000,000 orders were on hand and that production was being increased as fast as possible to meet the demand.

NO VAIN HOPE FOR RITCHIE

DOESN'T EXPECT NOMINATION, HE TELLS COMMITTEE.

REED THIS AFTERNOON

Senate Campaign Fund Investigators Visit Maryland Governor at His Office.

Baltimore, Md., May 8.—Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland told the Senate campaign investigating committee today he does not expect to win the Democratic presidential nomination and will do nothing to get it.

"I would be delighted if it came my way although I do not expect it to," Ritchie said in a ten-minute hearing held in his business office on the tenth floor of a bank building here.

Ritchie said he had no campaign fund and did not expect to have any.

The Senators sat around Ritchie's desk at they questioned him about his candidacy, for which purpose they motored over from Washington this morning.

Not Seeking Nomination.

At the outset Ritchie questioned the sugestion that he was a candidate, although Democrats of Maryland, in their primary yesterday authorized a delegation to be selected instructed for him.

"I don't know that you can call me a candidate any more than any other public man," Ritchie said. "I am gratified that my name has been mentioned but I am doing nothing to get the nomination."

Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, asked if there was any agreement whereby the Ritchie delegates would go to another candidate. Reports had been circulated that the Ritchie delegation is strong for Governor Al Smith. Ritchie replied that the delegation would not officially be selected until the state convention, May 22, and it would be impossible to answer such a question until then.

Has Raised No Funds.

Senator McMaster, Republican, South Dakota, pointed out that Ritchie is a renowned wet and asked if he expected any support from either the anti-saloon league or those organizations opposed to prohibition.

"I never received any help from the league in the past," Ritchie replied dryly, "and I don't expect it now.

"I haven't thought about raising a campaign fund to get elected."

Ritchie said he had made some speeches in other states but had never mentioned his own candidacy; that he had not spent any money himself and knew his friends had not.

The brief hearing thereupon adjourned and the committee started back to Washington, where this afternoon it will hear Senator James A. Reed of Missouri.

Sinclair Case Under Advisement of Court

Washington, May 8.—The District of Columbia court of appeals took under advisement today the appeal of Harry F. Sinclair from a three-month jail sentence and $500 fine imposed for Senate contempt in refusing to answer Teapot Dome committee questions in 1924.

A decision is expected June 4.

March Auto Exports Set New High Record

Washington, May 8.—American exports of automobiles established a new high record in March with a total value of $49,954,163, the Commerce department reported today.

Passenger cars exported numbered 40,181.

Canada occupied first position as a market for passenger cars, while Sweden jumped from seventh place in February to second place.

SEE JAPAN'S ACT AS WAR

SEIZURE OF CHINESE RAILWAY IS ANNOUNCED.

FIGHTING IS RENEWED

Japanese Forces Destroy Chinese Barracks at Tsinan, Deliver an Ultimatum.

18,000 More Japanese Troops.

Tokio, May 8.—The cabinet today decided to send a third military expedition, consisting of 18,000 men, to China.

Peking, May 8—8:10 P. M.—The gravest move in recent Chinese history was made today when Japan formally announced her seizure of the Tsing-Tao Tsinan railway in Shantung, where nationalist troops are driving toward Peking.

The seizure was regarded by foreign military observers here as a virtual declaration of war.

Simultaneously with the announcement came news that fighting had recommenced at Tsinan between nationalists and the 3,000 Japanese troops defending the foreign quarter.

Ultimatum Delivered.

When fighting was resumed, dispatches said, the Japanese expeditionary force destroyed the Chinese barracks with explosives and delivered an ultimatum demanding immediate evacuation of Tsinan and zone extending for seven miles each side of the Tsinan-Tsingtao railway.

The Nationalist troops, it was reported, have taken the offensive against the Japanese force.

Japanese intervention in China long has been hinted at. Japan has tremendous interests in Shantung and further north in Manchuria. Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian war lord, who is in command of the northern farces, has been friendly to Japan. Intervention would aid him and might blast finally the hopes of the Nationalists to sweep the north and take control of the government of the entire country.

There had been no grave international incident in China prior to the outbreak of fighting last week at Tsinan since the Nanking incident of March 24, 1927. Then Hunanese troops of the advancing Nationalist armies took the town and attacked foreign residents, including Americans.

Americans Aid in Defense.

American sailors and Marines played a prominent part in defending the foreign quarter when they were rushed there, and stories of gallantry displayed were numerous.

United States minister John Van A. MacMurray only a few weeks ago effected a friendly settlement of the incident with the Nationalist government, whose headquarters are at Nanking. The settlement involved an apology by the government for the conduct of its soldiers.

The Nanking incident, however, was a comparatively minor affair as compared with today's seizure of the railway, constituting physical intervention in Chinese affairs on a big scale. At Nanking the action of foreign soldiers was defensive purely, and the incident lasted only a day.

Even the British expeditionary force of thousands of men, sent to Shanghai a year ago, involved only occupation of the foreign quarter of the city in defense of British property and citizens there.

Nationalists Attack.

Tokio, May 8.—One hundred thousand Chinese Nationalists have started an attack on Japanese troops at

Gangsters Get Guns Through the Police

Shipment of Deadly Weapons Sent From Chicago Through Cicero Officers.

Chicago, May 8.—Chicago police have learned that a sporting goods house here sold about seventeen machine guns to gangsters last winter, but they lost trace of the guns because some were consigned to the Cicero police station.

It seems the guns were for Al Capone, overlord of gangsters in Cicero, but the sporting goods house was not eager to deliver them to the address given in the order.

"Well, consign them to the Cicero police station," the man who ordered the weapons said. "That good enough?"

This was done, and now there's a deal of head scratching in police circles as to where they went from there. Apparently they reached Capone's henchmen safely.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

STENO WEDS; BOSS SHOOTS AT HUSBAND

Utah Girl Is "Kidnapped" By Former Employer But Is Rescued By Police.

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 8.—Miss Ellen N. Trousdale was a very efficient stenographer.

As a cog in the wheels of the W. E. Spragine Company here she was happy.

So was William Spragins, manager and her employer.

Then Ellen answered the call of romance and neglected to tell Spragins of her marriage to Henry Bruster.

When her employer arrived at the office and found her gone he started on the "war path."

He knocked on the door of the Bruster apartment and, according to police, fired a shot when the bridegroom answered the door.

Bruster hurried to call police. Spragins grasped his former stenographer in his arms and carried her to his automobile and was clicking off 50 miles an hour when motorcycle policemen overtook him.

The "kidnaped" bride was returned to Bruster, and Spragins, who police say had been drinking, still was looking for an efficient stenographer today to replace Ellen.

Kidnapings in Kansas City's Bond Election

A Justice One of Victims of Intimidation Campaign as Big Issues Are Submitted.

Kansas City, Mo., May 8.—Acts of violence and kidnapings featured the joint city and county $31,000,000 special bond election in Jackson county today.

Six persons were kidnaped and carried away from voting places and several others were attacked but managed to escape their assailants.

Many sluggings and intimidation of precinct workers were reported to police who posted extra guards in the vicinity of every precinct in the city where trouble was looked for.

Justice Frank Benanti was the only victim of kidnapers who suffered severe mistreatment. He was beaten and carried away in an automobile containing three masked men.

Police received a telephone call from an unknown person who said persons kidnaped would not be harmed but would be kept from the voting places until they closed.

Voting in all the precincts was reported heavy.

U. S. GOLFERS SURVIVE TEST

7 PROS, 1 AMATEUR TO PLAY IN BRITISH OPEN.

ARGENTINIAN IS LOW

Jose Jurado Shows Way to High Class Field With 144 Score.—Hagen Is Featured.

Sandwich, Eng., May 8.—With one exception, the prominent American golfers entered in the British open championship survived the qualifying test today.

It took a slender young Argentinian, Jose Jurado, to show the way to all the high class field at Sandwich with a low aggregate of 144, but the professionals and one amateur from the United States did well and finished up among the leaders who will start play in the championship proper tomorrow.

Larry Nabholtz, Chicago pro, who was suffering from a heavy cold, failed to play his usual game and was eliminated. Two American amateurs also fell out, but they were Josh Crane and Si Newton, entered merely for the exercise.

Eight Americans Qualify.

One hundred and fourteen golfers shot 162 or better, 13 of them being tied with that score.

The Americans who qualified were: Walter Hagen, Jim Barnes, Gene Sarazen, Bill Mehlhorn, Tommy Armour, Bob Stupple, John McHugh and Douglas Grant.

While Jurado, the diminutive South American, was equalling the record for St. George's course with 69 to take the lead, Bill Mehlhorn was clowning about and putting left-handed. Wild Bill, who led the field on the opening day, took an 82 yesterday, and finished well behind the leaders.

The other American qualifiers played well, Gene Sarazen's game particularly showing improvement, while Walter Hagen, still most feared by the British, was consistent.

The Leaders.

Leaders in qualifying rounds were:
144—Jose Jurado, Argentine.
147.—H. C. Jolly, Great Britain.

"Taken for Ride" to Seal Lips on Robbery

Chicago, May 8.—Willie Jackson, well known to police as a confidence man and hoodlum, was taken for a ride here last night, police believe, to seal his lips for the Evergreen Park mail robbery.

Jackson had been sought by police as an accomplice in the robbery which netted $135,000. The gangster's body was found in an alley this morning, shot through the head.

It was believed he had been killed through fear that if arrested he would give information concerning the mail robbery.

IN DOUBT AS TO ROUMANIA

ONE DISPATCH SAYS PEASANTS MARCHING; ANOTHER DENIES.

ONE CLASH REPORTED

Berlin and London Hear of Arrest of Newspapermen.—Carol Asked to Leave England.

(By United Press.)

Conflicting reports marked the Roumanian internal situation today. Advices to Berlin newspapers and press associations told of a peasant force of 20,000 marching on Bucharest after adopting a resolution at the peasant congress by Alba Julia demanding resignation of the government of Premier Bratianu.

These advices told of one clash between peasants and the military; of martial law in Transylvania and of a tense situation.

Meanwhile a dispatch from the United Press correspondent at Bucharest emphatically denied that peasants were marching on Bucharest. This advice said all the participants in the Alba Julia congress had returned to their homes and complete order prevailed.

Newspapermen Arrested.

Advices in Berlin and London told of arrest of newspaper editors and correspondents, including the correspondent for the London Daily Express.

Juliu Maniu, leader of the peasants, was expected in Bucharest momentarily and will be received by the regency Thursday. He will carry the petition asking resignation of the government.

Meanwhile in London a most careful check was made on Prince Carol, who renounced the throne of Roumania. British authorities learned Carol had planned to fly to Roumania Saturday but was prevented in doing this. He was quoted in the Evening Standard as saying the moment "to strike has come." Both the foreign office and the home office decided to request Carol to leave England and the Daily Express said he had been served with a deportation order.

March on Capital Denied.

London, May 8.—The United Press correspondent at Bucharest today advised that no peasants were marching on the capital and emphatically denied Continental reports that a tense situation had developed in Roumania.

The advices said that all of the peasants who attended the peasant congress at Alba Julia Sunday had returned to their homes and that complete order prevailed throughout the nation.

Martial Law Reported.

Budapest, May 8.—Travellers arriving at Bekescsaba reported that martial law had been declared in Transylvania and that many foreigners had been expelled from the frontier.

The travellers asserted government authorities had made minute searches of every person crossing the frontier.

They also said the government had issued a manifesto stating it had no intention of relinquishing its power and in the manifesto warned peasants to refrain from marching on Bucharest.

Juliu Maniu, leader of the peasant party, is due in Bucharest momentarily with the resolution of the peasants demanding that the Bratianu government resign.

Censorship Rigid.

Vienna, May 8.—A rigid censorship prevented the leakage of any news from Roumania today except official announcements, conflicting rumors of an impending crisis and reports of peasants marching on Bucharest.

The censorship was supplemented by the arrest of representatives of several newspapermen serving outside newspapers and agencies.

Other newspapermen have been warned that arrest will follow any attempt to send news which the government holds to be false.

Government statements said there was conparative quiet in the country. Newspapers at Belgrade, who maintain contact with Roumania, generally bore out those statements. But there is a hint that correspondents are under severe pressure not to send unfavorable news.

Telephone service, suspended last night, was reopened today between Bucharest and Belgrade.

Resignation Demanded.

The correspondent at Bucharest of the Belgrade newspaper Politika published a statement from Juliu Maniu, leader of the peasants' party that has demanded the resignation of the government.

"The present manifestation," the statement said, "is one more move by the Roumanian people to show they are soverign. The movement has no connection with Prince Carol. Its chief interest is the overthrow of the feudal system of the present regime."

Jiliu Mikalache, the deputy leader of the peasants' party, reported to have instigated the peasants' march on Bucharest, was quoted as saying that a last warning was being given to the regency that is governing for Boy King Michael.

March Is On, Berlin Hears.

Berlin, May 8.—Advices to Berlin newspapers and press associations today said a force of 20,000 peasants was marching on Bucharest and that already there had been one clash between the peasants and the military.

The Tageblatt in a dispatch from Budapest said the peasants and soldiers had fought at East Alba Julia.

The telegraph union said in a dispatch from Belgrade that martial law had been declared in Bucharest and that troops guarded all roads leading to the capital.

Peasants' March Admitted.

Berlin, May 8.—The first official Roumanian intimation of a march of Peasants toward Bucharest was contained today in an interview with the Roumanian minister published in the newspaper Nacht Sus Gabe.

The minister was quoted as admitting that formations of peasants were marching on the capital. He added that the government could cope with the situation whenever necessary and indicated that the government was seeking to compromise with Peasants' party leaders.

Confederate Vets Gather for Reunion

Little Rock, Ark., May 8.—The confederate army, as much of it as survives, was gathered here today.

At 8 p. m. today the 38th annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans was scheduled to open officially with a joint assembly of veterans, their wives and sons.

Officials in charge of the reunion said they expected approximately 5,000 delegates here when the first bugle calls them to order. Accommodations have been made for 50,000 visitors.

Among the important officials of the veterans' organization here today were Dr. Sumter Lowry, of Florida, commander-in-chief of the sons of confederate veterans; Gen. J. S. Foster, Houston, Tex., commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans; Nathan Bedford Forrest, son of General Forrest of the Civil War, and past commander of the Sons of Confederate Veterans; Hollis N. Randolph, Atlanta, president of the Stone Mountain Confederate Monument Association.

A man in Pennsylvania voted for Harry Sinclair for president. No heat prostrations have been reported yet from that state, however.

Tsinan and General Chiang Kai-Shek, the Nationalists leader, has fled to Tsian, Nichi Nichi was advised today.

The Chinese general, according to advices to the newspaper, fled when he found he was unable to control his troops.

Severe fighting is continuing in Tsinan, the Ashai Shimbun's Tientsin correspondent reported.

Communications between Tsinan and Tsing Tao have been severed, it was said, after they had been re-established Monday. Only the most meager details were received here.

Japanese Outnumbered.

The war office lacks official advices of the new attacks but are maintaining a careful watch. The Japanese in Tsinan are greatly outnumbered.

At present twenty transports with troops are being held in readiness for dispatch to the Chinese area as soon as the cabinet makes a final decision on the need of their being sent to China.

Some Japanese reinforcements were said to be enroute to China today. Eleven destroyers and two torpedo flotillas were due to leave from Sasebo this morning.

Six armoured airplanes already are en route from Ping Yang for Tsing Tao.

Hostilities Believed Ceasing.

Shanghai, May 8.—Belief was expressed here that hostilities between Japanese troops and Chinese Nationalist soldiers at Tsinan were ceasing after meditation by British and American consuls.

It was understood that some Chinese troops had been removed from the Tsinan commercial area and an unconfirmed report said the Japanese had issued an ultimatum to General Chiang Kai Shek to withdraw his troops to a distance of seven miles from the beleaguered city.

The Nationalist General circulated a telegram to newspapers saying hostilities were abating and then added:

"The Japanese troops have challenged China by firing upon our soldiers and civilians, killing more than a thousand. As a revolutionist I cannot bow to such bullying and I propose to expose the deliberate brutality of the Japanese to the world. First, however, we must continue the northern expedition."

Japanese Well in Control.

London, May 8.—The Tsing Tao correspondent of the Manchester Guardian today advised that the latest clash between Japanese and Chinese troops at Tsinan-Fu ended at 11 o'clock Monday night with the Japanese well in control of the situation.

A few scattered snipers continued to menace the situation, the dispatch said.

Japanese casualties were believed to be about twenty dead, with about thirty missing. Nearly one thousand Chinese have been taken prisoners, the dispatch said.

Japanese soldiers said many civilians had been killed.

The Japanese advices, the correspondent said, were that about fifty houses had been looted by the Chinese.

Chinese Casualties Greater.

Chinese casualties were unknown but it was believed they would exceed those of the Japanese.

A correspondent advised the Manchester Guardian:

"I arrived here from Tsinan-Fu by the first Japanese military train. The situation at Tsinan-Fu is much quieter. Nationalists were withdrawn from the commercial section. Among the looted properties was a German hotel. British, American and other foreigners excepting the Japanese are safe and it should be possible to evacuate them by railway to Tsing Tao shortly."

The Campaign Log

May 8—By United Press.

A record vote was expected in the Indiana primary election today with chief interest centering on the race between Herbert Hoover and Senator James E. Watson for the Republican endorsement as a presidential candidate.

Herbert Hoover conferred with his New York managers on plans for the general election campaign in case he wins the Republican nomination. It was said plans for extensive use of radio, and moving pictures have been approved.

The New York headquarters for Governor Smith have been advised that a campaign is under way in California to give Smith the state's 13 electoral votes at the general election in November.

J. Bruce Kremer, Democratic national committeeman from Montana, said Montana would give its eight votes to Governor Smith at the Houston convention, under the unit rule, and he predicted the nomination of Smith on the first ballot.

Slight interest was demonstrated in the Maryland primaries Monday. The name of Herbert Hoover was the only one placed on the presidential ballots.

The Senate presidential campaign investigating committee today will interview Governor Albert Ritchie at Baltimore and later Senator James A. Reed, in Washington.

Mrs. Mary Thompson of Parnell is visiting in Maryville at the home of Mrs. Calla Seyster.

Trial of Land Bank Officials Is Resumed

Jury Completed to Hear Charges Against Walter Cravens and Miss Alice Todd.

Kansas City, Mo., May 8.—The trial of Walter Cravens and Miss Alice Todd, charged with misapplication of funds and making false entries on the books of the Kansas City Joint Stock Land bank, was resumed in federal court here today. Cravens was president and Miss Todd, secretary, of the bank. They are charged on 83 counts.

Selection of a jury was completed and opening statements of counsel were made yesterday afternoon. The trial is expected to last six weeks. A mass of documentary evidence and testimony from nearly 200 witnesses will be introduced.

Nugent Dodds, assistant United States attorney-general, told the jury in his opening statement the government will attempt to prove the two bank officials used several hundred thousand dollars of bank funds to promote private enterprises, and, in an attempt to cover up the transactions, made false entries in the bank's books and in its reports to the Federal Farm Loan board.

Most of the funds said to have been used improperly were employed in promoting the Missouri hydro-electric Power Co. at Bagnell, Dodds said.

Officials of the foreign office and the home office decided to request Carol to leave and the Daily Express today said that a Scotland yard officer already had served Carol with the deportation order.

Carol has been visiting England for the past week or so, remaining at Godstone, Surrey.

Yesterday it was announced officially that British authorities had learned Carol planned to fly from the Croydon Airdrome, Saturday, to Roumania and distribute manifestoes announcing his willingness to assume the throne held by his son, King Michael.

The British prevented Carol from making this flight, it was announced, on the grounds he did not have the necessary papers to land in Roumania.

The Evening Standard, in an interview with the former Roumanian crown prince quoted him as saying:

"There is no plot, but the moment has come and I am now striking."

The newspaper said this referred to his plans to reclaim the Roumanian throne.

Class Sermon Given by Dr. E. L. Robison

Speaker to Skidmore Graduating Class Preaches on "Behold, the Dreamer Cometh."

(By J. V. Hawk.)

SKIDMORE.—Dr. E. L. Robison, district superintendent of the Methodist church, St. Joseph, delivered the senior class sermon to the graduates of the Skidmore high school Sunday night at the M. E. church. His subject, "Behold, the Dreamer Cometh," was taken from Genesis, 37:19.

Dr. Robison challenged the youths of today to visualize their noblest dreams and believe that the possible things are those dreamed of. He said that the spiritual forces are the powerful forces for making humanity good. The elders were challenged to look deeper than the superficial indications which misrepresent youth and get to an understanding of the serious purposes of the young people.

They are dreaming dreams apt to come true, dreams such as "an actual dry America," "a prohibition world," and "warless settlement of international problems, with a good measure of world brotherhood thrown in," Dr. Robison said.

From all sides was heard unreserved words of appreciation of the talk, which was intended to encourage the graduates to dare to be guided in the direction which their dreams point and to go out into the world to win, not by dollar standards, but by service.

The church was crowded for the class sermon. The choir, composed of community singers, was seated on the platform. Those in the choir were Mrs. Leslie Strickler and Mrs. E. C. McClurg, soprano; Mrs. Laura Littler and Mrs. R. G. McClain, alto; E. C. McClurg and Jesse Barrett, tenor; H. W. Montgomery and L. D. Jordan, bass; and Mrs. Glen Cottrill, director and pianist.

Three anthems were rendered. The Rev. J. V. Hawk read the first eleven verses of the Thirty-seventh Psalm and gave the invocation.

The eighth grade commencement will be held Thursday night and the high school commencement on Friday night. Both exercises will be in the M. E. Church. Dr. C. M. Chilton of the First Disciples church, St. Joseph, will deliver the high school commencement address.

Crowded House Witnesses Play Given by College H. S. Seniors

The senior class of the College High School scored heavily in the presentation of the three-act comedy, "Robin Hood and His Merry Men," to a crowded house at the College auditorium last night. Mrs. Mary Esther Murphy O'Banion, formerly a student of the Horner Institute of Fine Arts at Kansas City and a graduate of the State Teachers College here, was director of the play.

"Robin Hood and His Merry Men" is a delightful and colorful dramatization of the theme evolved in the Robin Hood ballads of early English literature. The arrangement of the play last night was especially delightful to the large attendance.

Elaborate Costuming.

Probably one of the most important factors towards the ultimate success of the production was the elaborate costuming and careful stage directing. An entire outfit of velvet tights and jackets, high top boots, swords, helmets, wigs and the like was acquired for the presentation from a costuming company. For the forest scenes, real trees were arranged on the stage.

A misfortune which could have marred the presentation was the necessitated substitution of Richard Earl Nelson for Lawrence Logan because of the latter's sickness. Nelson took the part Saturday and filled the role last night with full adeptness, showing no lack of preparation on the stage.

Other outstanding characters were Catherine Lewis in the part of Lady Marian; Marie Horn, as Dorothy; Lester Horn, as Guy of Gisborne; Hardin Bird, as Friar Tuck. Douglas Linville as Robin Hood; Carl Smith, as Little John; Homer Nicholas, as Bishop; and Eldora Nichols and Netta Mae Rogers as Nan and Ruth, serving women.

The plot of the play is woven around the incident of Guy of Gisborne and the sheriff in forcing Lady Marian to marry Gisborne. The sheriff and Guy of Gisborne and Lady Jane enter into an agreement with Sir Richard Lee that if a sum of money is not paid within six months, Lady Marian will become the wife of Gisborne. Robin Hood features in the "hero" act when he adducts the beautiful lady from the castle where she is being held and takes her to the forest when she becomes Maid Marian. In the mixup, the sheriff's men are going to hang Robin Hood, and Gisborne is going to marry Lady Marian in spite of the opposition, not willing to accept any compromise. The king, her father, returns from Palestine, where he has been on a pilgrimage, and Sir Richard Lee returns with the ransom. The King forbids the marriage and forces the sheriff to take the bond.

Dramatic Skirmish.

One of the most dramatic and exciting scenes is an actual skirmish between the Robin Hood band of outlaws and the sheriff's men near the end of the first act. Swords and bows flash as the opposing factions engage in "deadly" combat.

The play this year has been acclaimed the best given in many years by the College high school seniors.

Others in the cast were:

Strolling Minstrel, Robert Lawrence; Hugh, an officer, Leland Nicholas; Sheriff, Richard Earl Nelson; Allan-a-Dale, Harry Winnell; Will Scarlet, Jake Shambarger; Midget, the Miller, Carl Smith; David of Doncaster, Fred Shambarger; Sir Richard of Lee, Kenneth Leeson; Lady Jane, Lora B. Pitzenbargar; Pilgrim, Kenneth Leeson; Wandering Friar, Jake Shambarger; Soldiers, Everett O'Day and Laverne Campbell; outlaws, Robertt Lawrence and James Conway.

A prologue opened the play. The three acts:

Act I. A Glade in Sherwood Forest.
Act II. A great hall in Nottingham castle.
Act III. Under the Greenwood Tree.

NODAWAY IDEA TO BE COPIED

HEALTH EDUCATION IN SCHOOLS IMPRESSES STATE MEET.

MARYVILLE MEN TALK

Work Through Teachers, Says Fryer, and Dr. H. J. Green Tells How to Train Teachers.

The Nodaway county idea of health education through the schools, which was explained by Dr. H. J. Green and Dr. C. P. Fryer at the State Health Association, convention at Jefferson City last week, was well received by the delegates and most probably will be followed in other counties of the state.

Dr. Green, who is medical advisor at the State Teachers College, made this statement on his return form the convention. He spoke of "Training the Teacher for Health Education," and Dr. Fryer, county health physician, spoke on the part the teacher plays in promoting health work.

In his speech at Jefferson City Dr. Green said:

"Educators all over the country are realizing that the three R's do not fulfill all the essentials for a thorough education. They are now finding it most important to establish a health education department. The most vital and urgent problem in carrying out such a program of health education is the training of teachers."

Because health education can't be carried out by a few specialists but necessarily by the classroom teachers, it is a problem of training all elementary school teachers, Dr. Green said. He said further:

"The preparation of teachers for health education cannot be completely adequate unless it is carried on in an environment and under a regime which insures to every teacher as healthful and vigorous a life as possible while she is in training.

"At the Northwest State Teachers College we are convinced that health teaching has a double purpose, the health condition of each prospective teacher and the opportunity for them to see abnormal conditions existing among grade and high school students.

"To achieve the first purpose the board of regents and the president have furnished appropriate equipment and supplies for a three-room office. We have established a student health service which includes a complete health examination for every student in the college and also for those in the training school. The second factor is by constant training to acquaint the teacher with abnormal health conditions. They are not to be diagnostitians but to be able intelligently to recognize a condition needing attention.

"The problem in training teachers for health education is, first to interest them in their own health, making it urgent that they present themselves physically fit when they apply for a certificate to teach; second, that they are fitted to recognize good and poor health conditions and know whom to call for assistance; and third, through their knowledge and interest they are a real factor in the health education program of the community, county and state."

Short Story Prize Winner Is Versatile

Miss Mildred Sandison Also Had Principal Role in Play—Edits School Annual.

Miss Mildred Sandison, a senior in the Maryville high school, was the first place winner in writing of the short story, one of the Northwest Missouri contests at the State Teachers College.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Sandison, Huntsville, Mo., but has been making her home with her grandmother, Mrs. O. B. Holliday, while attending school here.

Miss Sandison has been not only a strong student, but a versatile one. In addition to winning first place on her short story, she took the principal role in "Ashes of Roses," the play with which Maryville high school carried away first place in dramatic presentation. She is an active member of the Drama Club and the Ciceronian Latin Club and is editor of the "Maryvillian," annual publication of the senior class.

Last year Miss Sandison was vice-president of the junior-senior Girl Reserve organization and the Lyceum Club. She also was an officer in the Drama Club.

Miss Sandison ranks high in her Latin studies and has accomplished creditable work. Last year she completed a notebook under the title "The Magic Carpet of the Twentieth Century," which was praised highly by the late C. A. Hawkins of the State Teachers College and sent by him to W. L. Carr of Ann Arbor, Mich., who is secretary of the Classical Association.

In reference to Miss Sandison's work Mr. Carr said, "I have seen a good many projects of this general type represented by this book but nothing anything like it as elaborate or so obviously worth the immense amount of time that the pupil put into it."

Miss Mildred Williams of Burlington Junction was in Maryville yesterday.

"Best in Mind, Body and Spirit for Child"

The Rev. R. A. Mitchell, Pastor of the Methodist Church, South, Urges Attention to Youth.

For the child, the best in body, mind and spirit was urged in a sermon Sunday morning by the Rev. R. A. Mitchell at the M. E. Church, South. The sermon was inspired by Child Health Week.

"Christ has called us to many tasks, our duties are manifold, but in the center of all life He has set the child, and we offend one of these little ones at our peril," the minister declared.

"What do you think about the child, anyway?" he asked.

"When I see a sleeping child I want to kneel before it as the Wise Men did before the infant Christ. The smile of heaven is on its face and the blue of the skies in its eyes. We know not who the little stranger is, nor what he may become. He may be a future Disraeli, Gladstone, Beethoven, Raphael, Jefferson, a President, or a Bishop of the church we love.

"The birth of infants seems to be God's way of insuring to each child a fair start in life, for whether born in a cottage or in a palace, the babe may prove to be the king of men.

"God caused Christ to be born in a workman's family to teach us respect for every child, whether it belongs to a king or a carpenter.

"The Reverend Mr. Mitchell declared this lesson had not been learned as yet, adding, "every day thousands of innocent babes are born in hovels worse than the stable in which Christ was born."

The Reverend Mr. Mitchell declared the child is, more or less, what his environment makes it. "Therefore," he said, "I am coming more and more to believe in the shaping influence of the home."

The speaker criticized parents who are good citizens, but who, "unable to teach and pray with their children and manifest piety in the home, by way of compromise turn the child over to the church and expect the minister to make an angel out of it in thirty minutes a week."

"Our forefathers put the emphasis of religion on the other side of the grave. The only question was 'Where will you spend eternity?' The conception of religion was a passport to heaven. Consequently the hoary-headed sinner was coveted by the soul winner more than the youth.

"Today we believe religion must embrace the whole of life. The question is not 'Where will you be?' rather, 'What are you now?'

"This age is realizing that children, if well trained and wisely directed, are our greatest treasure."

HEAR MANY SUGGESTIONS

Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and some of the other central states. The school will be held for one week. The dates proposed for the school are August 6 to 10. As the summer term of the College will not be out until August 8, it was suggested that perhaps the meeting might be held a week later. More details about the meeting and its purposes will be published later, when definite dates are arranged.

C. H. Withington, chairman of the town betterment committee, suggested that prizes be given for the best kept yards and also for the best gardens.

Plants Would Locate.

Offers of some plants to locate here if some stock was sold were discussed by M. E. Selecman, chairman of the industrial committee. One plant is seeking a location now but are anxious to dispose of some $45,000 in stock.

The buying of Maryville bread brought out more remarks than many of the other proposed activities. It was stated by several persons that many of the stores here are "pushing" out-of-town breads and that unless Maryville bread was specified, and some time even then, orders are filled with the out-of-town bread. It was suggested that a missionary campaign be conducted to point out that the more money spent in Maryville the better for everyone.

Several suggestions were made as to trade promotion stunts. G. E. Tunstall told of some towns in South Missouri and Arkansas attracting many people by these events. Don Martin told of the merchants of one town having a "line party," during which a customer in the furniture store would be sent on to the hardware store, then to other places of business. Another suggestion was for one merchant in each line of business to advertise "leaders" each week. A picnic stunt also was discussed.

Ring Is Found Inside the Cylinder of Auto

John Malvern, Formerly of Quitman, Finds Masonic Emplem in Engine at Denver, Colo.

The following news item concerning John Malvern, formerly of Quitman, who is now at Denver, Col., was taken from the Denver Post:

John Malvern, 140 West Dakota avenue, a mechanic employed by the Smith Motor company, was telling a new Ford story Saturday.

While engaged in overhauling an old Ford truck for a Negro, who has used the machine for several years in hauling ashes, Malvern found a valuable gold ring, with a ruby set and and Masonic emblem, in one of the cylinders.

The colored owner of the truck could give no clew to the owner, replying, "No, sah, it sho don't b'long to me," to the query.

Since it is the first time that the engine has been overhauled, Malvern is of the opinion that it fell from the finger of one of the employes in the Ford factory when the truck was built.

STATE RACES GET WARMER

CLOSING DATE FOR FILING ONLY MONTH AWAY.

CANDIDATES GET BUSY

Aspirants for Senator and Governor in Both Parties Are "Beating the Bushes."

Jefferson City, Mo., May 8.—The political pot has begun to boil in Missouri.

The closing date for filing for state office is but one month off, and the primary election, at which party nominees are to be selected, is only three months from now.

Most candidates for the major political offices of the state already are "beating the bushes," and others will begin this week. Several of the candidates have been actively engaged for some time in building up a statewide organiaztion for their campaign.

Aspirants for the gubernatorial nomination in both parties have shown the greatest activity. Several of them already are waging intensive campaigns. Hardly less activity has been shown in the senatorial field.

Organization Candidates Inactive.

State Senator A. L. McCawley of Carthage, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and Lieutenant Governor Phil A. Bennett of Springfield, William R. Schneider of St. Louis, speaker pro tem of the House in the last General Assembly, and Judge Sam D. Hodgdon of St. Louis county, all Republican gubernatorial aspirants, have been busy with their campaigns.

Meanwhile the two candidates said to have the organization support in their respective parties, have been inactive, so far as outstate campaigning goes, trusting to their supporters to keep things moving. They are Judge Henry S. Caulfield of St. Louis, Republican, and Francis M. Wilson of Kansas City, Democrat.

Chief interest in the contest for the United States Senate centers around the selection of a Republican organization candidate for the nomination. Several, including former governor Arthur M. Hyde, George Williams, and Charles Faust, who were depended on some time ago to make the race, have declined to enter. O. J. Page of Springfield, floor leader in the House in the last legislature, is the only Republican to file for the office. He has been waging an active campaign for several weeks.

Hay Opposed by Collet.

Charles M. Hay of St. Louis, dry leader and candidate for the Democratic nomination of U. S. Senator, has been waging an active campaign for almost six months. He is opposed for the nomination by James A. Collet of Salisbury, a friend of Senator James A. Reed. Collet is a "wet" and Reed is expected to actively support him in the race.

C. Eugene Stephens, state treasurer, and Charles U. Becker, third term candidate to succeed himself as secretary of state, are conducting a lively fight for the Republican nomination as secretary of state. Dwight H. Brown, state senator from Poplar Bluff, and James T. O'Brien of St. Louis, are contesting for the Democratic nomination.

L. D. Thompson, incumbent, is unopposed for the Republican nomination for state auditor. Contestants for the Democratic nomination include Edward Tiffin of Ferguson, Forest Smith of Richmond and Tim Birmingham of St. James.

A four-cornered fight for the Republican nomination for state treasurer is to be staged, with Larry Brunk, A. H. Steinbeck, Herman Lufcy, and W. F. Norris offering for the office. Richard R. Nacy is the only Democrat to file for the office.

Shartel Unopposed.

Stratton Shartel of Neosho is as yet unopposed for the Republican nomination for Attorney General. The Democratic nomination for the office promises to be hotly contested with Loe C. Lozier of Carrollton and George G. Vest, jr., of St. Louis County already having filed, and Elmer Jones of Laplata, having announced his candidacy.

One judge of the State supreme court, division No. 1, is to be elected this year. Judge W. W. Graves, Democratic incumbent, has filed for re-election. W. F. Frank of Kirksville and Alroy S. Phillips of St. Louis, have filed for the Republican nomination.

City Installs Scale of Greater Capacity

A Fairbanks-Morris ten-ton scale was being installed by the city today to replace the old scale in front of the fire station on North Market street.

The former scale had a capacity of only six tons. The new scale is known as a "compound truck scale," and was installed because the former scale was inadequate for the heavy loads carried by motor trucks which are weighed at the city weighing station.

Everything is going to be all right, after all. The Democratic keynote speaker is an editorial writer.

Girls Are Like That

By Mildred Sandison

(Prize Winning Story in the short story competition held in connection with the Northwest Missouri high school contests).

The tennis court, parched, half-baked by the blazing sun, seemed an uninviting spot to the spectator who loiled luxuriously in the nearby shade. Through half-closed eyes, she languidly viewed two figures, who, oblivious of heat, were engaged in a hard fought game of tennis. As the players raced here and there across the dusty court, the onlooker, drowsily interested, followed with her eyes their quick movements. Presently a voice roused her from her idle apathy.

"What say, Mary? After that set is over, let's play a game or two?"

"Oh, Bob, it's too hot. I haven't the energy. I always lose anyway, so what's the use of trying?"

"If you'd only practice, you wouldn't be bad. Your forehand stroke is all right, but your backhand is simply terrible," returned the other with direct fraternal frankness.

"I'll never be a good tennis player, Bob, and there's no reason for my wasting my time on it."

"You're hopeless," he groaned.

"Perhaps so—but even if I can't equal you in any of your old athletic feats, believe me, I can certainly dance better."

"Who cares about dancing?" her brother asked scornfully.

"I do, and you ought to."

"Dancing is such an effeminate pastime; that's why I don't waste much time on it."

"And tennis is such a strenuous pastime; that's why I don't waste much time on it. Besides, it is terribly hard on the complexion when a person is out in the sun so much. My face would be a sight if I treated it the way you do yours."

Robert stared unbelievingly at her. "Do you mean to say that you cheat yourself out of hours of fun merely for the sake of 'keeping the schoolgirl complexion'?" he demanded.

She nodded in the affirmative.

Disgust and amusement vied for mastery of his countenance. Finally he said with unflattering emphasis, "Girls are like that."

Robert soon forgot this inadvertent remark, but for the ensuing hour his sister thought of little else. At the end of that time she sighed. "I suppose the gang is over at Jean's, dancing—but I don't believe I'll go. I'm not in the mood for it." Then she laughed. "Mary Louise Nash, you are generally crazy to dance, so evidently your brother's brutal candor has stirred you out of your customary complacence, hasn't it? He told the truth, or you wouldn't care what he said. Now it's up to you to redeem yourself and the entire feminine sex." She pondered the matter thoughtfully. "I'll prove to Bob Nash that girls are not the silly, vain creatures that he thinks they are," she vowed mentally. "At the risk of ruining my complexion, I shall practice tennis until my backhand stroke is perfect. Then I'll challenge Bobbie to a game, and we'll see what happens. I'll show him that dancing is not my sole accomplishment. Let's see, with whom can I practice."

That question was unwittingly answered by Bob himself.

"Mary, we wanted to play doubles this afternoon," he said that evening, "and couldn't do it because there were only three of us. I was certainly provoked because you wouldn't play. So was Jim."

"Well, well," was the nonchalant answer.

"He surely was. He said that he wished you would realize some day that there were a few things in this world more to be desired than a peaches and cream complexion!"

"Jim said that?" asked Mary Louise with unruffled equanimity. She strove to keep the elation from her voice, as she jubilantly realized that Jim Channing was the very person she was seeking. She would profit by his instruction, while he should pay dearly for his careless remark. "I'll do even better than the proverbial killing of two birds with one stone. I'll kill three—make Bob and Jim each 'eat his words,' and at the same time, improve my backhand stroke."

The secret was divulged only in part to Jim. Mary Louise merely told him that she wished to surprise Bob by perfecting her faulty returns, but did not volunteer the reason for this unprecedented display of energy. He promised that he would help her correct her mistakes, and that he would not tell Robert of her plans.

"When can we practice, though?" he asked. "Bob will see us if we practice in the morning or evening, and those are the times that the court is shady and pleasant."

"Can't we practice in the afternoon? Summer school begins next week, and he'll have classes then."

"Of course that would be the best time, if you don't want him to find out what you're doing, but, Mary Louise, you know as well as I do that it is unbearably hot in the afternoon. You might get sunburned."

"That doesn't make any difference to me. What does a little sunburn, more or less, amount to?"

"Why, I had always thought—"

"Thought what?"

"Oh nothing. I guess I must have been mistaken. When shall we start practice?"

"As soon as summer school begins. That means that next Tuesday I take my first lesson under the capable instruction of Mr. James Channing."

The first few weeks evidenced little progress. Mary Louise became rather disheartened, but each time her resolution wavered she thought of Bob's four words which she had accepted as a challenge, and redoubled her determination and effort.

"'Girls are like that.' Now, Bobbie dear, be more explicit; just what are girls like?" She rehearsed the speech innumerable times, for it was thus that she planned to reveal to him the course she had taken.

Robert was entirely unaware of the tennis games which took place every afternoon. Boylike, he did not notice the becoming tan which was gradually tinting his sister's face, neck, and arms. There was no other reason for him to suspect the plot into which he had been initiated, for Jim faithfully kept his promise, and mentioned tennis to him only when that subject chanced to arise in the conversation.

At times Mary Louise's enthusiasm was dampened, and she wondered what foolhardy scheme she had undertaken.

"I'm neglecting my dancing, and not improving my tennis. Just what am I accomplishing?" she demanded of herself after a discouraging defeat. "You're developing will power and stick-to-itiveness, at any rate," another self answered fiercely. "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

Mary Louise tried, and tried again. Sometimes she was very successful. At such times Jim was genuinely congratulatory.

"Keep it up, Mary. You're coming along fine," he said after one particularly well-played game.

"Thanks, but—do you know—here I've practiced diligently almost every morning for a month and a half, and I can't notice that I'm so very much better than I was at first."

"Oh yes you are, but even if you had made no improvement at all, you should remember that you can't develop into a Helen Wills. I think you're doing splendidly."

"Jim, you're such a comforting soul. It's too bad I am interested in my 'peaches and cream' complexion to the exclusion of all else, isn't it? Otherwise we might go to the show tonight," she said roguishly.

"Please, let's go tonight. It's awfully good."

"Sorry, but I can't. I've already promised Jack Dalton I'd go with him. He has always been an admirer of me and my roseleaf skin, you know. He says it is like velvet—"

"Mary Nash, you're going to the show with me tomorrow night, then. Do you hear me?"

"Yes, James," she meekly answered. She added to herself, "You are accomplishing your designs, Mary m'love. Jim wouldn't have wanted to take you anyplace two months ago. He thought you were nothing but a baby-doll. Two months hence, he'll be taking you regularly." (Incidentally, it might be said that her prophecy came true).

As the summer days glided by, Mary Louise was surprised to find that she looked forward to the tennis hour more than any other hour of the entire day. She gradually became disinclined to attend the informal daily parties at which her friends spent the sultry afternoons playing bridge and dancing.

"I'm reforming," she told Jim proudly. "No longer am I a hot-house plant."

"So I have noticed. I'm glad."

"Oh Jim, you don't say," she said, attempting to keep the pleasure from shining in her expressive eyes. "I'll be a Number One player before you realize it," she added lightly.

"Only three more weeks until my college starts," he said ruefully, "and our coach will have to leave."

"I dread to think that this fun has to end, don't you?"

"Yes, I do, Mary Louise, but then—don't forget, there will be next summer, and the next, and the next—"

"Did you know that I started this just to spite you and Bob?"

"I suspected it. I can't begin to tell you how sorry I am that I made that hateful remark about your peaches and cream complexion."

"Don't let that worry you. The only thing that hurts my feelings is that I am not as smart as I though I was. To think that you knew all the time what I was doing—trying to get even with you two for what you said. I suppose Bob knows it too."

"I don't believe he does. In three more weeks, we'll see."

When at last the long-awaited day arrived, Mary Louise, nervous and excited, said to her unsuspecting brother: "Bob, let's play tennis this evening." He did not notice that her voice trembled with suppressed eagerness.

"I can't play this evening. How about tomorrow afternoon?"

"That will be all right."

"Oh no, it won't either. I forgot. Mary, you musn't expose your face to the sun."

"I'll wear a visor."

"A lot of good that'll do. I can't have my sister getting as brown as a berry. I've noticed lately that you are getting to be a regular tomboy. Next year you'll be a senior in high school, and you act more like a kid every day, especially when you're with Jim. You used to be a lady, but now you're a hoyden."

Even in her disappointment, Mary Louise could hardly suppress a smile to think that he had not noticed, in spite of his last words ,the tinge of tan which gave her skin a newly-acquired healthy glow!

"I do love to see a girl with a beautiful complexion," he continued.

Mary Louise blinked.

"Say that again, Bobbie. I must be dreaming."

"I said that you must keep your skin beautiful. Joan Conway has a lovely complexion, hasn't she?"

"Oh no, honestly, she is merely an expert in the use of cosmetics."

"Don't be catty, little sister. Joan is a fine girl. She dances divinely. By the way, I have a surprise for you. It ought to please you. Joan has taught me to dance."

"Joan—that vain little doll? I'm not being catty, really, but—why Bob, you told me, or at least I thought, that you didn't admire that type of girl!"

"Where did you get that idea? I admire Joan very much. In fact, it is because I am going over to see her this evening, that I can't play tennis. I am tired of tennis, to be quite frank. Dancing is twice as much fun!"

"Robert Nash, you make me tired! Here I've practiced all summer on tennis, and now you prefer dancing."

She flounced away, leaving Robert perplexedly gazing after her. Puzzled, he scratched his head. "Well, what do you know about that? I can't please her to save me. But then," he concluded resignedly, "girls are like that."

Hay Opens Campaign With Fulton Address

Democratic Dry Leader Has Much Larger Crowd Than Opponent, James A. Collet.

Fulton, Mo., May 8.—The Democratic senatorial campaign in Missouri went into full swing yesterday with the formal opening of Charles M. Hay of St. Louis here, following the formal opening of his opponent, James A. Collet in Keytesville Friday night.

Each of the candidates chose old home grounds on which to launch his candidacies. Hay formerly resided in Fulton and once represented Callaway County in the legislature. Collet was born and reared in Chariton County, which he chose for his opening.

Hay's speech yesterday was a scathing denunciation of corruption in Republican administration, a comparison of all Democratic administration in the history of the country with the Republican administrations, and a statement of his views on questions of country-wide concern.

Before Large Crowd.

In point of numbers and in demonstration the Hay meeting, however, far outclassed that of Collet. Collet had about 500 hearers. At noon yesterday it was estimated that more than 3000 persons from outside Fulton were here for the Hay opening.

Although the Hay-Collet contest is virtually certain to narrow down to a wet and dry fight, Hay, the dry candidate and the outstanding dry leader of the State, had not a great deal to say about it. He referred to his statement last December, when he announced his candidacy, his position being that prohibition was a settled policy of the country, that it should be considered settled, and that the country should turn its attention to other things as political issues.

Urges Enforcement.

To this he added:

The Democratic party should stand for the observance and enforcement of all laws. It was Jefferson who wrote these words as a part of the creed of Democracy. 'Absolute acquiescence in the decisions of the majority, the vital principle of republics from which there is no appeal but to force the vital principle and immediate parent of despotism.' He also wrote as a further part of his creed the words: 'The support of the state governments in all their rights' and 'the preservation of the Federal Government in its full constitutional figure.' That's the doctrine of true Democracy. That's the only doctrine by which organized society can be maintained. The majority may err, but so may a minority—and more often. If we cannot accept the decisions of the majority, pray tell me, by whose decisions are we to be guided?"

GIRL ALONE

COPYRIGHT 1928 BY NEA SERVICE

By ANNE AUSTIN, AUTHOR OF "SAINT AND SINNER"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

SALLY FORD is "farmed out" to CLEM CARSON, farmer, the summer she is 16 and leaves the orphanage, the only home she knows from the time she is four. She meets DAVID NASH, athletic and student of scientific farming, who is working on the Carson farm for the summer. David likes the orphan, openly prefering her to PEARL, Carson's daughter. This angers Pearl and Carson.

When Carson makes insulting remarks about Sally, David hits him.

David and Sally, fearing Carson is dead, run away. At daylight they find themselves near a carnival train. Sally is overjoyed to find EDDIE COBB, former inmate of the Home, who runs away to join the carnival. He asks WINFIELD BYBEE, owner of the carnival, to make a place for them. David is placed in the cook's car, while MRS. BYBEE, the real manager of the carnival, dresses Sally in satin trousers and tunic and sends her on the platform as Princess Lalla, crystal gazer.

The midget, "PITTY SING," asks Sally to carry her to the car for supper and as she trips along with the little woman, she catches sight of the headlines on the midget's newspaper. The story of David's fight with aCrson is told in big headlines. Sally runs to show David the lie that is being published. As Sally leaves the kitchen she runs into Winfield Bybee and his wife. They ask her to join them at supper. Sally tells Mrs. Bybee all she knows about her mother and that she lived at one time in Stanton, the town they are now in. Mrs. Bybee agrees to go scouting the next morning to see what she can learn.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 17

Hours more of "crystal-gazing," of giving lavish promises of "long journeys," success, wealth, sweethearts, husbands, wives, bumper corn and wheat crops, babies—until 11 o'clock and the merciful dwindling of the carnival crowds permitted a wearly little "Princess Lalla" to slip out of the "Palace of Wonders" tent. Pitty Sing, the midget woman, cradled in her arms like a baby. For Pitty Sing had promptly adopted Sally as her human sedan chair, uncompromisingly dismissing back-eyed Nita, the "Hula-Hula" dancer, who had previously performed that service for her.

"I don't like Nita a bit," the tiny treble voice informed Sally with great definiteness. "I do like you, and I shall compensate you generously for your services. Nita has no proper respect for me, though I command—and I say it without boasting, I hope—twice the salary that that indecent muscle-dancer does. And she always joggled me," the midget added aggrievedly.

"Poor Pitty Sing!" Sally soothed her as she picked her way carefully over the grass stubble to the big dress tent which also served as sleeping quarters for the women performers of the "Palace of Wonders." "Haven't you anyone to look after you? Anyone belonging to you, I mean?"

"Why should I have?" the indignant little piping voice demanded from Sally's shoulder. "I'm a woman grown, as I've reminded you before. I've been paying Nita five dollars a week to carry me to and from the show tent for each performance. Of course there are a few other things she does for me, but if you'd like to have the position I think we could get along very nicely."

"Oh, I'm sure of it!" Sally exulted laying her cheek for an instant against the flaxen, marcelled little head. "Thank you, Pitty Sing, thank you with all my heart!"

"Please don't call me 'Pitty Sing'," the little voice commanded tartly. "The name does very well for exhibition purposes, but my name is Miss Tanner—Elizabeth Matilda Tanner."

"Oh, I'm sorry!" Sally protested, hurt and abashed. "I didn't mean—I"

"But you may call me Betty." The treble was suddenly sweet and sleepy like a child's. One of the minature hands fluttered out inadequately to help Sally part the flaps of the dress tent, which was deserted except for the fat girl, already asleep and snoring stertorously.

Sally knelt to enable the midget to stand on the beaten down stubble which served as the only carpet of Sally's new "dormitory."

"Thank you, Sally," the midget piped, her eyes lifted toward Sally out of a network of wrinkles which testified that she was indeed a "woman grown." "You're a very nice little girl, and your David is one of the handsomest men I ever saw."

"Your David!" Sally's heart repeated the words, sang them, crooned over them, but she did not answer, except with one of her rare, sudden, sweet smiles.

"Nita evidently thinks so, too," the weak little treble went on, as "Pitty Sing" trotted toward her cot, looking like an animated doll. "I might as well warn you right now, Sally, that I don't trust that Nita person as far as I can throw a bull by the horns."

She flung her dire pronouncement over a tiny, pink-silk shoulder as she knelt before a small metal trunk and reached into her bosom for a key suspended around her neck on a chain.

Sally's desire to laugh at the preposterous picture of the midget throwing a bull by the horns was throttled by a new and particularly horrid fear.

"What—do you mean, Betty?" she gasped. "Has Nita—?"

"—been vamping your David?" tiny Miss Elizabeth Matilda Tanner finished her sentence for her. "It would not be Nita if she overlooked a prospect like your David. It is entirely obvious that he is a person of breeding and family, even if he is helping Buck in the 'privilege' car kitchen. Nita is always so broke that she has to eat her meals in the cook tent, but she borrowed or stole the money today to eat in the privilege car, and she found it necessary to confer with your DaDvid on a purely fictitious dietetic problem, and then went boldly into the kitchen to time the eggs he was boiling for her. That Nita!" the tiny voice snorted contemptuously. "She's as strong as a horse and has about as much need for a special diet as an elephant has for galoshes. Oh, she's up to her tricks, not a doubt about that. I just thought I'd warn you in time. Nita's a man-eating tigress and once she's smelled blood—"

"Thank you, Betty," Sally interrupted gently, as she knelt beside the midget to help her with the lid of the trunk. "But David isn't my David, you know. He's—he's just a friend who helped me out when I was in terrible trouble. If Nita likes David, and—he—likes her—"

"Don't be absurd!" the midget scolded her, seating herself on a tiny stool to take off her baby size shoes and stockings. "Of course you're in love with him, and he's crazy about you—a blind person could see that. Will you untie this shoe-lace, please? My nightgown is in the tray of the trunk, and you'll find a nightcap there, too. I wear it," she explained severely, on the defensive against ridicule, "to protect my marcel. Heaven knows it's hard enough to get a good curl in these hick towns, with the rubes gaping at me wherever I go. Then please get my Ibsen—a little green leather book. I'm reading 'Hedda Gabler' now. Have you read it?"

"Oh, yes," Sally cried, delightedly. "Do you like to read? Could I borrow it to read between shows? I'll take awfully good care of it—"

"Certainly I read!" Miss Tanner informed her severely, climbing, with Sally's help, into her low cot-bed. "My father, who had these little books made especially for me, was a university professor. I have completed the college course, under his tutelage. If he had not died I should not be here," and her little eyes were suddenly bitter with loneliness and resentment against the whimsy of a Providence that elected to make her so different from other women.

Sally found the miniature book, small enough to fit the midget's hand, and gave it to her, then stooped and kissed the little faded, wrinkled cheek and set about the difficult and unaccustomed task of removing her make-up. Beside her cot bed she found a small tin steamer trunk, stenciled in red paint with the magic name, "Princess Lalla." She stared at it incredulously for a long minute, then untwisted the wire holding duplicate keys.

When she threw back the lid she found a shiny black tin make-up box containing the burnt-sienna powder Mrs. Bybee had used in making her up for the first day's performances; a big can of theatrical cold cream; squares of soft cheese-cloth for removing make-up; two new towels; mascara, lip rouge, white face powder, a utilitarian black comb and brush; tooth paste and tooth brush.

"Oh, these kind people!" she whispered to herself, and bent her head upon the make-up box and wept grateful tears. Then, smiling at herself and humming a little tune below her breath she lifted the tray and found—not the tell-tale dresses which Pearl Carson had given her and which had been minutely described by the police in the newspaper account of the near-tragedy on the Carson farm—but two new dresses, cheap, but pretty, the little paper ticket stitched into the neck of each showing the size to be correct—14.

She was still kneeling before her trunk, blinded with tears of gratitude, when a course, nasal voice slashed across the dress tent:

"Well, strike me dumb, if it ain't the Princess Lalla in person, not a movie! Don't tell me you're gonna bunk with us, your highness! I thought you'd be sawing wood in Pop Bybee's stateroom by this time! What's the matter he ain't rocking you to sleep and giving you your nice warm little bottle?"

Sally rose slowly, the new dresses slithering to the floor in stiff folds. She batted the tears from her eyelids and then stared at the girl who stood at the tent flap, taunting her.

She saw a thin, tall girl, naked to the waist except for breastplates made of tarnished metal studded with imitation jewels. About her lean hips and to her knees hung a skirt of dried grass, the regulation "hula dancer" skirt.

"You're—Nita, aren't you?" Sally's voice was small, placating. "I'm—"

"Oh, I know who you are! You're the orphan hussy the police are lookin' for!" the harsh voice ripped out as Nita swung into the tent her grass skirts swishing like the hiss of snakes. "Furthermore, you're Pop Bybee's blue-eyed baby girl! And—you're the baby-faced little she-devil that stole my graft with that little midget! Well, Princess Lalla, I guess we've been introduced proper now, and we can skip formalities and get down to business. Hunh?" And she bent menacingly over Sally, evil black eyes glittering into wide, frightened blue ones, her mouth an ugly, twisting, red loop of hatred.

Sally backed away, instinctively, from the snake-tongues of venom in those black eyes. "I'm sorry I've offended you, Miss—Nita—"

"If you're not you will be! Want me to tip off the police? Well, then, you get this—and get it good, all of it!"

Trapped by Her Past!

RECENTLY an actress, who a few years ago was popular on Broadway, submitted to True Story Magazine a most startling story. It told why she had left the stage at the height of her career never to be seen upon the boards again.

It was a tale of dread and terror as each night she swayed her thousands to smiles or tears, her eyes, masking the agony in her soul, were seeking, always seeking among the audience, the one man in the world who had the power to drag her down from the pinnacle of success to the ignominy of defeat. Deep in her heart she knew that some day he would come, and that when he did her career would end.

And so when one night she received a note from a man in the audience who was awaiting her reply, she realized the time had come to settle her account with fate.

Her story entitled "Trapped by My Past," appears in True Story for June. With nothing hidden, nothing omitted she has put into it all the fire that perhaps once held you spellbound across the footlights. Maybe as you read it you will recognize her. Dr. O. A. Johnson

at St. Joseph Thursday

Eminent Rectal Specialist and Ambulant Proctologist at Robidoux Hotel from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. Thursday, May 10.

Free Examination and Consulation

Cures Piles Without Surgery

Sufferers from piles or other rectal troubles in Maryville and vicinity will have a convenient opportunity to consult Dr. O. A. Johnson, the well-known rectal specialist of Kansas City next Thursday, as on that day he will be in St. Joseph from 10 o'clock in the morning until 9 at night at the Robidoux Hotel and will personally examine any rectal sufferer who calls on him. He makes absolutely no charge for this examination and obligates you in no way.

Dr. Johnson uses with amazing success the ambulant method of curing piles. Over 15,000 people have been cured by this non-surgical treatment. He does not use surgery, acids, cautery, electricity or any other harsh, drastic treatment. There is no confinement to room or bed, or loss of time from home or work, no hospital fee. Pain, bleeding and protrosusions are usually allayed with the very first treatment. With just a few more mild treatments, your piles are entirely removed and cured. So sure is Dr. Johnson that his method will cure you that he guarantees the refund of his moderate fee if you are not cured. So sure is he that your cure is permanent that he further guarantees to treat you as long as he lives free, should your piles ever come back again. Curing the piles also cures other reflex ailments they cause, such as nervousness, constipation, liver, stomach, intestinal and kidney troubles, indigestion, pains in back, groin, etc.

Don't miss this opportunity to consult this well-known specialist as it will be the last visit Dr. Johnson will make to St. Joseph until fall. There are many men and women living in and near St. Joseph whom he has cured and who are loud in their praises of his treatment. He will gladly give you their names, addresses and phone numbers and have you ask them about his treatment. Remember the place and date, Robidoux Hotel, St. Joseph, Thursday, May 10, from 10 a. m., to 9 p. m. Ask the clerk at the desk for Dr. Johnson's suite. He will have a woman nurse with him for women patients. If you cannot call, write his office, 1324 Main St. Dept., in Kansas City, Mo., for his free book on piles.

Expect More Lambs at Market This Year

Movement, However, to Begin Later in Missouri—Average Condition Below 1927.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 8.—Although the movement to market will begin somewhat later than last year, Missouri farmers are expected to market more lambs this year than in 1927, according to a report issued here today by E. A. Logan of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics and Jewell Mayes of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture.

Weather and feed conditions during March in all the important early lamb areas, except the far northwestern states, were less favorable than a year ago, and the average condition of lambs is below that of the same period in 1927, the report stated. General movement of early lambs to market will begin about July 1, the report said.

Cattle and Hogs Are Higher, Sheep Lower

Fat Steer Classes Will Be in Limited Supply for Next 60 Days.—Demand for Stockers Less Urgent.

Kansas City Stock Yards, May 8.—Fat steer prices were quoted up 15 to 25 cents, butcher cattle were strong to 25 cents higher and stockers and feeders were unevenly lower. Last week's rains stopped the heavy marketing of fat steers and with no grass cattle in sight for some time to come it looks like fat classes will be in limited supply in the next six weeks. Hog prices broke last week but increased demand yesterday brought a rebound of 15 to 20 cents. Trade ruled active. Sheep and lamb prices were quoted off 15 to 25 cents and 75 cents to $1. lower than a week ago.

Beef Cattle.

Last week's decline in prices and the good rains in many sections of the west that were seriously in need of moisture cut down receipts of fat steers to a material extent. Demand also increased with the result that practically all classes of killing steers were quoted 15 to 25 cents higher. It will be more than sixty days before any material supply of grass fat steers is available and in the meantime receipts of fed cattle will be small. The best steers, yearlings and steers and heifers mixed shown brought $13.75 to $13.85. Nothing prime was offered in the heavy steer class. Both Colorados and natives made the top. The bulk of the good to choice steers brought $13. to $13.75; fair to good $12. to $13. Cows and heifers were strong to 25 cents higher. Choice cows sold up to $11.25 and choice heifers up to $13. Steers and heifers mixed brought $11.50 to $13.75. Veal calves were in active demand at firm prices.

Stockers and Feeders.

Demand for stockers and feeders was less urgent than on preceeding Mondays and prices broke 15 to 25 cents except the lower priced kinds and they were at steady. Some stock heifer calves brought $13.25 and light stock steers $13. Most other sales were at $11.50 to $12.50.

Hogs.

After declining 60 to 70 cents last week the hog market rallied 15 to 20 cents. Demand showed increased urgency. While shippers set the pace in the trade packers were more active than for some time past. Indications are that receipts will be light the rest of the week. The 170 to 240 pound hogs brought $9.75 to $9.90; 240 to 310 pounds $9.50 to $9.75; 140 to 165 pounds $9.35 to $9.70; packing sows $8. to $8.75 and stock hogs and pigs $8. to $8.35.

Sheep and Lambs

Sheep and lamb prices have declined steadily since the middle of last week. Yesterday's market was weak to 25 cents lower than last week's close and 75 to $1. lower than a week ago. No wool lambs arrived. Shorn lambs brought $14.50 to $15.; spring lambs $17.50 to $18.; with culls $14. to $14.50; shorn wethers $9.50 to $11.75; shorn ewes $8. to $8.50.

Trade in horses and mules has slowed down considerably owing to the advanced season.

U. S. Boat Sinking to Be Investigated

New York, May 8.—Hearings will start today before a special board of inquiry, into the sinking of the war department dredge Navesink yesterday with a loss of 18 lives.

The dredge sank after it crashed into the anchored Lamport and Holt freighter, Swinburne, in the narrows off Clifton, yesterday morning. Twenty-nine members of the crew of the dredge were saved.

Eighteen other crew members still were missing today and war department officials believed they had been trapped in the lower part of the vessel. Divers will go down today in an attempt to locate the bodies and to ascertain the damage to the dredge.

There was the greatest of confusion concerning the accident. The dredge apparently was making its way through the Narrows early yesterday when it collided with the anchored freighter. It sank immediately. Forty-seven members of the crew were aboard. Twenty-nine of them were picked up by other boats.

Final Grain Review.

Chicago, May 8.—An avalanche of buying orders from the northwest influenced by reports of forest fires and renewed drough sent wheat sharply higher toward the close on the board of trade today. Corn and oats followed but corn failed to regain early losses. Provisions were higher.

Closing prices: Wheat ⅝c to 1⅝c up; corn off ¼c to ¼c; and oats ¼c to ⅝c up.

Unexpectedly weak reports from Liverpool, favorable weather conditions and expectancy of the government report due tomorrow afternoon influenced the wheat market early. Support was not as aggressive as recently and although there were rallies the bulges were not maintained. No export business was reported and the cash market, with receipts of 124 cars was ½c lower.

Favorable weather for planting operations was reported in corn but there was little other news of significance. Receipts of corn were smaller, 153 cars and the cash market went ½c off.

Oats showed more strength but there was little change. The market was generally quiet and featureless. Receipts were 38 cars and the cash market was unchanged.

INDIANA GOES TO THE POLLS

PRIMARY BALLOTING TODAY MAY BREAK ALL RECORDS.

BIG TEST FOR HOOVER

Clash With Strong Watson Organization Draws Eyes of Nation—Farm Relief An Issue.

By Bert M. Demby
United Press Staff Correspondent

Indianapolis, Ind., May, 8.—A heavy vote was being polled in the Indiana election today in cities in all parts of the state, according to reports here.

Reports from rural sections, however, indicated that the farm vote was light.

The reports caused satisfaction among supporters of Secretary of Commerce Hoover as it was conceded that the greatest strength of Senator James Watson, Hoover's opponent for the Republican presidential candidacy, is in the rural districts.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 8.—Indiana swept by a tremendous wave of political enthusiasm, voted in a primary election today on its most significant array of issues in years.

From every corner of the state came reports that primary balloting was heavier than ever before. By the time the polls close tonight more than a half-million votes will be cast, it was predicted.

The balloting will determine a question of national importance—whether Indiana's thirty-three votes in the Republican national convention shall go to Herbert Hoover or to Senator James E. Watson, favorite son candidate for the presidential nomination.

Corruption An Issue.

Of hardly less importance will be Indiana's decision on the corruption issue—a decision which will show the electorate's own opinion of the scandals which have rocked the state.

The third paramount result of today's balloting will concern farm relief. Indiana is a solid agricultural state, and its choice between Hoover and Watson, the latter an outstanding champion of farm relief, will furnish a significant insight into the agricultural Middle West's attitude toward Hoover.

Up to the last minute of the heated primary campaign, the rival Hoover and Watson camps each were confident of victory by wide margins.

The Hoover forces were lined up against what long has been one of the most highly efficient political machines in the United States. Despite Hoover's strength and popularity as a presidential candidate in other primaries recently, it was believed by many political leaders that Watson's organization would prove too great an obstacle to his success in the Hoosier state.

Watson Supporters Confident.

Watson's supporters are confident the Senator will carry his home state by a greater majority than he did in the senatorial election of 1926, when he received approximately 160,000 votes.

Oscar Foellinger of Fort Wayne, Hoover's campaign manager in the state, believes the Secretary of Commerce's margin of victory will be between 75,000 and 100,000 votes.

Watson's stronghold, it is conceded, is in the southern part of the state. Few politicians believed he would experience any trouble carrying the agricultural counties of that section, because of his positive stand on farm relief.

Hoover's strength generally is admitted to be in the larger cities and in the industrial areas. He has been favored by business interests and has won the endorsement of several large labor organizations, notably the railroad brotherhoods. Union working men have praised him for his stand in the coal mine controversies.

Number of Votes a Factor.

The Republican state organization—a powerful influence—rallied to Watson's aid and most of his votes were expected to result from the campaign conducted by the organization.

The Hoover candidacy has been advanced through newspapers and no attempts were made to match Watsons' claim of "60,000 volunteer 'Watson for President' workers."

Political observers seemed agreed that if voters turn out enmasse, Hoover would stand a good chance of defeating Watson in his home state. On the other hand, they believed that if only the normal number of voters went to the polls, the Watson organization would win.

North to Decide It.

It appeared the contest would be settled in the northern part of the state where both candidates concentrated their campaigns during the last few weeks. Lake county, in the extreme northwest corner, which has a large industrial population, is likely to be a decisive factory. Both sides have claimed its vote.

With the Republicans closely divided, the Democrats have predicted that their ticket will carry the state in the November election. Recent political history has seen many of the older alignments broken up and thrown into confusion.

Evans Woolen, the Democratic favorite son, ran unopposed on today's ballot. Woolen and his party leaders contend that even if the Republican ranks are re-united by the time the November election arrives, they still will have a good chance to win. They say that the state is anxious to "clean house" and will elect the Democratic ticket if the Republicans fail to discard the old political order.

May Go to Lowden.

One of the chief subjects of speculation, meanwhile, concerns what will become of Indiana's Republican convention votes in the event Watson wins over Hoover.

He has been charged with seeking the thirty-three votes for "trading purposes" on the convention floor, but he and his supporters have denied the accusation vigorously.

It is generally believed, however, that Watson would throw his strength to Frank O. Lowden or Vice-President Dawes.

So important has been the Hoover-Watson fight that campaigns for state offices have been comparatively inconspicious. Like the principal contest, they mostly are uncertain.

Ten Republicans and seven Democratic candidates seek the nominations for governor. In the Republican senatorial race, U. S. Senator Arthur R. Robinson was opposed by Attorney-General Arthur L. Gilliom, foe of the Klan and the Anti-Saloon League, and Solon J. Carter, former Marion county judge.

Albert Stump, Walter Myers and W. L. Curry are seeking nomination in the Democratic senatorial contest.

Alabama Democrats to the Polls Today

Delegation Likely to Be Uninstructed But Against Smith.—Test on National Committeeman.

Montgomery, Ala., May 8.—Democratic voters of Alabama went to the polls today to choose the state delegation of 24 to the national convention, and a national committeeman.

Predictions were made that the delegation will go uninstructed and the famous "24 votes" that went to Oscar Underwood in 1924 would stand pat against Governor Al Smith's candidacy.

The pre-primary campaign in Alabama has been marked by bitter anti-Smith feeling and a pronounced "dry" tinge.

One Alabama newspaper polled all candidates for places on the delegation and announced that opposition to support of Smith was widespread.

In the primary election for national committeeman a real indication of Smith's strength among democracy of this state is looked for. State Senator Watt T. Brown of Ragland, St. Clair county, has been vigorous in declaring himself against the New York governor. His only opponent, Walter Moore, Birmingham, who for four years has held the position, has been non-committal.

Republicans of Alabama will go to the primaries May 16. Hoover supporters predict an instructed delegation.

AGAIN WARNS OF SPENDING

TAX REDUCTION ENDANGERED, COOLIDGE FEARS.

MAY NEED NEW TAXES

Number and Size of Proposals for Expenditures "Appalling" to President.

Washington, May 8.—President Coolidge was represented today as believing that if all proposed expenditure measures now before Congress are passed, tax reduction will be endangered and that additional tax levies probably will be necessary.

The President was represented also as disturbed over the numerous proposals calling for vast expenditures and as feeling the number and amount are becoming appalling.

Among the proposed appropriation measures brought to the President's attention are the flood control bill, calling for a minimum expenditure of $500,00,000; the farm relief measure, calling for $400,000,000; the Boulder dam project, with a minimum estimate of $125,000,000; the pension bill calling for between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000; the salary increase bill calling for $18,000,000; the Muscle Shoals project calling for perhaps $75,000,000; and the vocational training and corn borer measures calling for a total of $13,000,000; and the postoffice pay bill calling for $20,000,000.

Texas Democrats in County Conventions

Meetings Today to Determine Extent of Lone Star State's Opposition to Smith.

Dallas, Tex., May 8.—Texas Democrats met in county conventions this afternoon to decide to what extent they will oppose the nomination of Governor Al Smith of New York for president.

With the sentiment of Texas Democrats shown to be unfavorable to Smith in the state-wide precinct conventions last Saturday, the delegates to the county conventions will be called upon to decide whether the delegations to the state Democratic convention at Beaumont, May 22, shall be instructed against Smith or simply to vote for a dry party plank and seek the nomination of a dry candidate.

Two factions, one headed by Governor Dan Moody, seeking a dry plank and instructions against all wet candidates by name, and the other seeking a dry plank and favoring the nomination of a presidential candidate in accord with such a plank, will take an active part in today's county meetings.

Hoover Victory Likely.

Victory for R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman from Texas, who favors the nomination of Herbert Hoover, appeared imminent in the Republican county conventions, held simultaneously with the Democratic meetings this afternoon. A faction headed by Congressman Harry Wurzbach and opposed to re-election of Creager and the nomination of Hoover, appeared likely to control the conventions in only a few counties.

There were politicians in the state today willing to prophesy that failure of the Democratic county conventions to pledge their delegates to the state convention against wet candidates by name will result in Texas' forty votes being cast for Smith should the New York Governor sweep the convention. This belief also is held by many Smith supporters, who recently began efforts for an uninstructed delegation. Opponents of Smith admitted that the New York governor will control 200 of the 818 votes in the state convention.

Moody Against Smith.

However, Texas displayed a strong tendency in the precinct conventions last week-end to vote dry and to elect Governor Moody as one of the delegates at large to the national convention. Moody has expressed bitter opposition to Smith in several recent speeches. If he heads the Texas delegation to Houston, his friends believe he will keep Texas' forty votes back of a dry presidential candidate until the nomination of a wet becomes inevitable, if such is the case.

New York Central Bridge Dynamited

Dillonvale, O., May 8.—A New York Central Railroad bridge at Pineyfork Mine here was dynamited today, halting traffic between Dillonvale and Alliance.

County officials attributed the blast to striking coal miners and sympathizers.

Three bridges in this area have been destroyed within the past three weeks.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD.

By United Press.

Yesterday's hero: Robert Moses Grove, the lean southpaw of the Philadelphia Athletics. He fanned nine men in pitching the Athletics to a 10 to 0 victory over the Tigers. It was Grove's fourth victory of the season and the A's third straight over the Tigers.

The White Sox and Yankees made 11 hits each, but the world champions made theirs go farther, beating Chicago for the fourth straight time, 8 to 5. Home runs by Gene Robertson and Bob Meusel aided the Yankees.

Connecting for 17 hits, six of them for extra bases, the St. Louis Browns routed the Washington Senators, 15 to 2.

The pitching of Walter Miller and the hitting and fielding of Charley Jamieson enabled the Cleveland Indians to beat the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 2. Miller gave up 11 hits, but scattered them. Jamieson made two good catches, got three hits and scored two runs.

The Reds could hit Larry Benton, but they were able to score on him only once and the New York Giants defeated Cincinnati, 5 to 1. Benton allowed ten hits, but was tight in the pinches, while the Giants used eight hits to a better advantage.

Frankie Frisch's single in the ninth gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 6 to 5 victory over the Brooklyn Robins. Douthit, who had walked, scored from second on Frisch's hit. Del Bissonette, Robin's first baseman, hit his sixth home run of the season.

The Chicago Cubs made a clean sweep of their three-game series with the Philadelphia Phillies, winning the last game, 7 to 4. Riggs Stephenson drove in four of the Cubs' runs, hitting a homer with a man on in the fifth.

The Pittsburgh Pirates moved into a tie with the Brooklyn Robins for third place by beating the Boston Braves 9 to 4.
